YELTSIN AND COQUILLETTE TO SWAP JOBS!!!

By Flo Tincanic
National Alledger Exclusive

In a shocking and bizarre turn of events, officials announced this week that recently ousted Russian President Boris Yeltsin will be the new BCLS dean and outgoing Dean Dan "Commie" Coquillettte will become the new leader of Russia!

Coquillettte said he never got that call from Washington, but he can hardly wait to go to Moscow!

'MOSCOW—HERE I COME'—SAYS FORMER DEAN

"I never really thought of myself as much of a 'hard-liner'," he said. "I always considered myself something of a reformer. But when the Russian Parliament called, how could I say 'No'?"

"As the new Russian president, my first goal is to recapture all the former Soviet republics and reestablish Communism in Eastern Europe," said Coquillettte, who once served as a legislative aide to Sen. Joseph McCarthy. "Then I want to hire a bunch of strung-out heroin junkies and put them in charge of the 'button.' God, I miss the Cold War."

Yeltsin also said he looks forward to his new role as the Dean of Disneyland.

"My experience as a Russian potato farmer will be very helpful in running Boston College Law School," the rotund Ruskie said. "I plan to drink large quantities of cheap American vodka every day."

Ex-U.S. President Billbo Clinton said, "Dan who? Never heard of the guy."

Ever wonder what keeps those wacky 1Ls so fit and trim as they tumble down staircases and pass out in the bathrooms? It's a crazy new diet that includes nothing but alcohol!

More than half the first year class has taken to this new weight-loss, mind-melt craze, losing over two tons of flab and killing an estimated 8.2 million brain cells!

"It's a great way to get through Con Law," slurred drunken 1L Arnie Schreck. "I can't even remember my own name! Plus, I've lost 15 pounds!"

Crack members of the Newton and Brookline Municipal Police Departments report rounding up large numbers of sh*tfaced first-years as they stagger out of local watering holes and drinking establishments.

"We can usually squeeze about 20 or 30 of 'em in a single paddy wagon, said crack Newton Police Officer Richard Brain. "They are pretty skinny, after all. We usually need about five or six paddy wagons during the week and eight or nine on the weekends to round 'em all up. We keep 'em over night in the 'puke tank,' then turn 'em loose in the morning. But most of 'em just end up back here the next night."

Law School Dean Dan "Don't Touch That Dial" Coquillettte said he opposed the 1Ls vomiting in the Snack Bar, but he admired their remarkable weight loss!

"That all-alcohol diet really seems to do the trick," Coquillettte said. "I think I might give it a whirl. I could afford to lose a pound or two."

"I really admire their stick-to-it-ness," said 3L Susie Chapstick. "Most diets are hard to stay with. These amazing 1Ls are displaying the brand of tenacity they'll need to survive two more grueling years here at BCLS."

LOONEY 3L FLIPS OUT—AND READS A CASE!!

National Alledger Exclusive

A completely loopy 3L recently went totally nuts—and read a case! As friends tried to talk their psychopathic classmate out of his insane scheme, third-year law student Adnoid Boogersfield insisted he had to read the case.

"I'm playing Bankruptcy roulette," he whined. "Yesterday, Hillinger called on a kid named Boogersfielck. She's bound to get to me soon!"

But the joke was on Boogersfield. Dean Dan "Svengali" Coquillettte said the offending 3L would be expelled.

"We don't stand for that kind of tomfoolery here at BCLS," Coquillettte said. "Imagine—a 3L reading a case! My word!"

HASHIMOTO COPS NOBEL...

WORLD PEACE DECLARED!! AIDS CURED!! U.N. DISBANDS!!

By Slug Facts
National Alledger Exclusive

The great Dean Hashimoto, or "Dean-Dean," as he's known throughout South America, has received one more honor—a little thing known as The Nobel Prize!

As everyone knows, Dean-Dean finished first in his class at Stanford, first in his class at Harvard, clerked for Supreme Court Justice William Brennan—where he not only wrote all of Brennan's opinions, but all the other justices' as well—and taught at Harvard Medical School.

Now Hashi has taken his brilliant brain and applied it to good use—by solving all the world's problems!

Just last week, Hashimoto discovered a cure for cancer.

"I was mixing up a few reagents in my kitchen," Hashi said, "when I realized I was onto something!"

After discovering the cure for cancer, The Great One turned his mighty intellect toward one of the world's most troubling problems—AIDS!

"I added a little Polaner All-Fruit (please, don't call it jelly) to my cancer cure, and Bingo! A cure for AIDS," Hashi said.

The discoveries had the pleasant side effect of putting the R&D departments of most U.S. drug companies completely out of business, saving the drug-consuming public billions!

"We've got 'em on the ropes now," said President Hillary Clinton. "Soon I'll have those drug companies wishing they had never been born!"

Later that day, Hashimoto discovered cures for all other diseases known to man, including new remedies for polio and small pox!

'HE'S AWESOME'
—SAYS
MADONNA

Over the weekend, Dean-Dean turned his attention to world peace, brokering equitable resolutions to armed conflicts in the former Yugoslavia, the former Soviet Union, Northern Ireland, the Middle East, India and even ended a long-running but little-known feud between Norway and Sweden!

Late Sunday, Hashi further padded his resume by solving all the mysteries on TV's "Unsolved Mysteries" and capturing all the wanted fugitives on TV's "America's Most Wanted."

On Monday morning, hundreds of delegates to the United Nations were shocked to discover the U.N. complex had been converted into a parking garage.

"We didn't see much point in continuing," said former U.N. chief Bootrosse Bootrosse Golly, now a valet parker. "With Dean-Dean solving all the world's problems, it seemed more economically feasible for us to convert to a parking garage. Actually, it was his idea."

By late Monday, Dean-Dean had revived the U.S. economy, reduced inflation, paid off the national debt, lowered taxes, repaired the American infrastructure and passed a new law known as The BCLS 3L Full Employment Act, guaranteeing high-paying legal jobs to the entire graduating class.

On Tuesday, Hashi received his Nobel Prize in a ceremony attended by everyone in the entire world!

"It was nice to see all my worshipers there," Dean-Dean said.

"I'm so proud of him," said Dean-Dean's mom-mom, Mrs. Hashimoto. "Now maybe he'll have time to clean his room."

ZIGGY GOES WIGGY! PROF COMMITS BIZARRO CRIMES

By Curley Baumgarten
National Alledger Exclusive

In a development that shocked the BCLS community, Professor Zygmunt Plater was arrested yesterday for possession of 39 kilograms of marijuana. The arrest marked the final chapter in what has since been discovered to be a wrenching saga of scandal, delusion, and environmental irresponsibility on the part of the once-esteemed professor.

The marijuana was discovered inside of an alligator-skin pouch which the supposedly environmentally-conscious Plater surreptitiously kept in his mink-lined shoulder bag. Logan International Airport security agent Johnston Mathers said that he was surprised to find so much marijuana on Plater's person.

"Initially, I was just checking him out because he wasn't wearing any shoes and also because it's airport policy to investigate all people named Zygmunt," Mathers said. "I didn't expect to find anything."

Once he was in custody, Boston police were able to link Plater to the chain of truly disturbing events which apparently comprised the professor's harrying week: the shooting of several deer while driving on I-95, the abduction (and subsequent adornment in a spandex leotard labelled "Raccy") of a wild raccoon, purchasing and then setting fire to a Store 24, and the ongoing and inexplicable harassment of one Mrs. McGillicutty. Plater's spree culminated in a late-night trip to a mansion in rural Tennessee which officials referred to as "Anne's Toke Parlor."

It was during this last episode that Plater was seen, chainsaw in hand, running toward a privately-owned oak grove, screaming "I am the Lorax! I speak for the trees!". It was also during this part of the trip that Plater procured the marijuana which was seized yesterday, police said.

After being charged with trespassing, creating a nuisance, arson, theft, poaching, insurance fraud, bestiality, and violation of zoning laws as well as possession of marijuana, a sobbing Plater asked for forgiveness and admitted that he could not come up with an explanation for his spree. "I just got carried away. I needed some good hypos for next year's property class and I, I just, I just, I just got carried away."

When asked about his politically incorrect luggage, Plater mumbled incoherently, the only discernible words being, "Walk the land."

Dean Daniel Coquillet, who asked not to be identified, revealed that signs of danger have been evident in Plater for some time.

"Signs of danger have been evident in Plater for some time," he said.

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT LANDS ENTIRE CAST BEHIND BARS

By Slug Facts

Fans and performers of the Law Revue show were more surprised than a "Crying Game" audience Friday night when more than 50 cops, dressed in full riot gear, stormed Robsham theater—arresting over 200 law students!

The cops—actually federal copyright agents—stopped the show in the middle of a show-stopping performance by 3L Rina Mayman. The pigs slapped the cuffs on the entire cast, beating several members silly with paperback copies of Title 17, the federal copyright code.

In federal district court Monday, prosecutors charged the shackled thespians with violating copyright law by stealing the tunes of several protected songs for the show's musical numbers.

"These punks are law students," a federal spokesmodel said. "They know darn well what they were doing."

JUDGE OUTLAW SETS BAIL AT $200 MILLION

The group's alleged ringleader, Ken "Lionel Barrymore" Samuel, faces the most time up the river. With more than a dozen federal charges pending, Samuel is looking at 40 years in the hole.

"This never happened to Mike Klein!" shouted Samuel, as federal bailiffs were forced to wrestle him to the ground and cram a stick into his mouth when he refused to enter a plea.

Professor Buzzy "Buzzed" Baron said the ACLU would throw its full support behind the defendants.

"This is the sorriest bunch of saps I've ever seen," Baron said as the students were led, chained together, from the courtroom to waiting police vans. "Look at them—bawling and drooling all over themselves. I've seen civil rights marchers in the South attacked by police dogs and billy clubs show more dignity than this lot. Yeah, yeah, I suppose the ACLU will help them, but they make my stomach turn."

...SHOW'S HEAD WRITER FACES 40 YEARS

Judge Daryl "I've Got a Shotgun Under Here, So Don't Try Anything" Outlaw, held the entire cast on $200 million bail.

"I know a danger to the community when I see one," Outlaw snorted.

Planners of next year's Law Revue show, tentatively titled, "Saturday Night's All Right for Studying," said they hoped to avoid the present cast's fate by writing all new melodies. But then they realized that would be impossible, and decided to take their chances with the feds. Maybe next year's show should be called "Saturday Night's All Right for Getting Busted!"

LAW LIBRARIAN TANGLES WITH LAWSQUATCH!!

By Flo Tincanic
National Alledger I-Team

Deputy Dog Director of the BCLS Law Library, Michael "Mikey Dolenz" Chiorazzi says he's lucky to be alive.

The Buckwheat-haired library aide claims he came face-to-face, nose-to-nose with Lawsquatch, the legendary half-man, half-ape rumored to dwell in upper floors and dark corners of the law library.

"It was Lawsquatch, awright," said a visibly shaken Chiorazzi, still jumpy several days after the encounter. "He was near 'bout 8 feet tall, with hair everywhere! Breath smelled worse 'en a pole cat in a portapotty. Ah dam near puked!"

Outgoing Dean "Bookem" Danno Coquillet claimed the school has no documented evidence establishing conclusively that Lawsquatch does, in fact, exist.

"The school has no documented evidence establishing conclusively that Lawsquatch does, in fact, exist," a jittery Coquillet said. "Except, of course, for those photos, films, videotapes, hair samples, footprint casts, fecal samples, breath-alizer results, tissue samples and skulls I keep locked in a 15th century Spanish foot locker under my desk."

According to legend, a tribe of huge, half-man, half-ape creatures, known as Lawsquatch for their bizarre courtroom antics, migrated to Newton from the suburbs of Portland, Maine, where they harassed townspeople by shouting legal epithets at all hours of the night and tossing volumes of the weighty Centennial Digest onto their cars from overpasses.

In a National Alledger Exclusive, we have obtained an exclusive, never-before-published interview with an actual, living Lawsquatch, now residing beneath the carol on the third floor at the end of the Iowa Reporter.

National Alledger: Lawsquatch, why are you here?

Lawsquatch: We came to BCLS looking for a quiet, deserted place to live, and we felt the library would give us the security we desire.

NA: Lawsquatch, are you dangerous to humans?

Lawsquatch: Oh, yes. Well, only if you consider eating them to be dangerous.

Don't be fooled by the administration's lies and cover-ups. Lawsquatch is real, and only the National Alledger's got him! Look to the National Alledger each week for exclusive interviews with, and political commentary by Lawsquatch, the National Alledger's newest celebrity columnist!

LAZY PROFS EXPLODE!!!—STUDENTS RUN FOR COVER

By Slug Facts
National Alledger Exclusive

At least three full professors and one associate exploded in classes last week, sending terrified law students running for cover!

"He just blew up!" screamed horrified 1L Andrew Warthog, as he fled from Room 315 moments after a recent explosion, wiping bloody internal organ tissue out of his eyes. "I'm gettin' out of here!"

Scientists from the breast implant division of Dow Corning determined the explosions were caused by a weird, mutating virus. The virus apparently lives in elevator shafts, and gets passed from professor to professor while riding the elevator.

Experts estimate up to half the professors may now carry the virus, and could explode at any time!

"I suggest students wear protective goggles at all times," said Dean Dan "Howard Cunningham" Coquillet. "You never know when one of those suckers is gonna blow."

DRAHCIR KCEP'S AMAZING HOROSCOPE

Hi folks! It's me again, Drahcir Kcep, and I'm seeing stars! Maybe I should cut down on the grain alcohol consumption. No, wait! These are your stars I'm seeing! Now, if only this room would stop spinning, at least long enough for me to interpret these stars. Well, here goes:

ARIES: You're a winner! Finally, endlessly and compulsively filling in those entry blanks, cutting out and pasting all those little pictures, subscribing to all those magazines you don't want like Farm Equipment Today!, and Bride Mania, and receiving endless misleading notifications with Ed McMahon's picture on them, has paid off!

But wait! You didn't want the dream vacation for three, you wanted the $10 mill or at least the red Jaguar! And besides, you can't take the vacation because it's scheduled for same time as final exams!

Life can be cruel.

TAURUS: You are having trouble detecting any real interest or passion from that certain someone. Perhaps you are acting too passively. Some people like their special someone to be more aggressive. Try going over to their house dressed in a leather thong and big black spiked boots, holding a whip and displaying a visage full of menace. They just might change their tune!

GEMINI: Invite an acquaintance over to play some hopscotch. If he actually shows up, ready to play, jeer at him and make fun of him for being such a fool. Tell others!

CANCER: Don't go tryin' some new fashion. Don't change the color of your hair. Don't sleep in the subway. Don't stop thinkin' about tomorrow. Don't be fooled by cheap imitations. Don't cry out loud. Why don't we do it in the road?

LEO: You will be approached by the Devil, who will make you an offer. He will see to it that you become an extremely successful and wealthy lawyer, famous for generations as a great orator and litigator, a star of the Supreme Court and a renown scholar of jurisprudence. All he asks for in return are the souls of your wife and children for all of eternity.

Being a well-trained and circumspect future attorney, you naturally want to know:

"So, what's the catch?"
(Sorry, Drahcir could not resist one lawyer joke.)

VIRGO: Dance!

LIBRA: You have suddenly become possessed of Zen-like powers of concentration. You find that you now have an almost super human power to do anything you set your mind to.

Seems like a good time to finally fix that toaster oven!

SCORPIO: Salt your daily change away. In six months you'll have the down payment for that shiny item you've been longing for.

CAPRICORN: Calm down! Take a deep breath. You'll be able to accomplish what you need to if you'll just concentrate and do one thing at a time. Stop acting like everything is an emergency! Besides, if this had been an actual emergency, you would have been instructed where to tune in your area for further information.

AQUARIUS: Harmony and understanding, sympathy and trust are found. And I'm the Pope.

PICES: You have a dream that in September you will be starting a two-year clerkship with Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia. You wake up in a cold sweat with a clenched stomach. Then you realize it was just a bad dream. In reality, this September you will be starting a two month stint as File Clerk at Framingham Small Claims Court. You breathe a deep sigh of relief.

Remember: It's a wise guy who rules the stars; you're a tool who is used by him.
